About the booklet...

The lexical approach to second language teaching has received interest in recent years. The lexical approach concentrates on developing learners' proficiency with lexis, or words and word combinations.

In this booklet, are 6000 most commonly used words in English, ranked in frequency order. The first 25 words make up about a third of all printed and spoken material. The first 100 make up about half of all written and spoken material, and the first 300 make up about 65 per cent of all written and spoken material. With 2,500 to 3,000 words, you can understand 90 per cent of everyday English conversations, English newspaper and magazine articles, and English used in workplaces. The remaining 10 per cent you will be able to learn from context, or ask questions about. Is it any wonder that all students must learn to recognize these words instantly and to spell them correctly? Originally, the verbs given in this book formed part of the list of the 6000 frequently used words. In order to present all the verb forms, the verbs have been grouped and presented separately.

The above list is based on an analysis of the Oxford English Corpus of over a billion words, and represents a study done by Oxford Online, associated with the Oxford English Dictionary. This source includes writings of all sorts from “literary novels and specialist journals to everyday newspapers and magazines and from Hansard to the language of chatrooms, emails, and weblogs”.

After the list of vocabularies, a list of frequently used sentences, are presented. Instruction focuses on relatively fixed words and expressions that occur frequently in spoken and written language, such as, “I’m sorry,” “I love you” or “That will never happen again,” rather than on originally created sentences.

Few graded reading texts are given to practice and to check one’s comfort level of (loud)reading and comprehension ability.

Reading and listening to authentic English material would greatly enhance word power and knowledge of collocations. A constant reading and practice would enhance proficiency in English.

All the best

2. Frequently Used English Verbs in Speaking and in Writing

An English verb can be regular or irregular.

Regular verbs form their past and past participle forms by adding '-d' or '-ed' to the root verb.

Examples:

Dance – danced – danced
Walk – walked – walked
Work – worked – worked

Irregular verbs form their past and past participle forms in different ways.

There are mainly three types of irregular verbs.

Verbs in which all the three forms are the same (e.g. put – put – put)

Verbs in which two of the three forms are the same (e.g. sit – sat – sat)

Verbs in which all three forms are different (e.g. drink – drank – drunk)

Some verbs can be both regular and irregular. Some examples:

Burn – burnt – burnt (irregular)	Dream – dreamt – dreamt (irregular)
Burn – burned – burned (regular)	Dream – dreamed – dreamed (regular)
Learn – learnt – learnt (irregular)	Spoil – spoilt – spoilt (irregular)
Learn – learned – learned (regular)	Spoil – spoiled – spoiled (regular)

John : Good morning. I'm John.

Siva : Good morning. I'm Siva.

John : Please meet my friend, Anbu.

Siva : Pleased to meet you, Anbu.

Anbu: Me too.

Dialogue 3

Govind:Excuse me. I'm Govind from Yellagiri Hills.

Aruna: Hello, I'm Aruna from Salem.

Govind: This is my friend, Nathan, from my village.

Aruna: I think we have met.

Nathan : Yes. We met at the college office.

3. Dialogues at Home from Dawn to Dusk

Dialogue 1

Mother :Arun, it is 6 o'clock

Arun: I am awake already, ma.

Mother : Brush your teeth.

Arun: Daddy is in the toilet.

Mother : Alright, arrange your bed and get the milk.

Arun: OK, ma.

Mother : You are good.

Dialogue 2

Rani :Arun, where is my pen?

Arun: I don't know.

Rani : You took my pen yesterday.

Arun: I gave it back to you already.

Rani : No, you did not give me.

Arun: Look in your bag.

Rani : Yes, I found it. I am sorry.

4. Seeking Permission

Dialogue 1

Hosteller 1: Could I use your bathing room
please?

Hosteller 2: Yes, of course.

Hosteller 1: Would you mind if I use your shaving set?

Hosteller 2: Go ahead

Hosteller 1: Is it alright if I use your soap and tooth paste?

Hosteller 2: Here, use my towel too but, don't touch my clothes.

Dialogue 2

A: Hai, Charu! Can I borrow your necklace?

B: What's up?

A: I would like to attend a wedding reception
this evening.

B: Sure, but return it tonight.

A: Shall I return it in the morning?

B: No, I need it for a wedding at 7 in the morning.

A: Thank you so much, I shall return it tonight.

Dialogue 3

A: If you don't mind, could I use your computer?

B : By all means.

A : I need to send a mail urgently.

B : Certainly. It's all yours.

A : My boss wants me to send an MOU to one of our clients in KL.

B : If you need my help, don't hesitate to ask.

A : Is it OK if I take your computer to my room?

B : I am sorry. I cannot let you do that.

5. Asking for Advice

Dialogue 1

Rani : I don't think we should place this cupboard here.

Raja : Why? It looks perfect here.

Rani : No. It hides the window.

Raja : What would you recommend?

Rani : I think we should push it to this corner.

Raja : That's a good idea.

Dialogue 2

A : What have you got in your hands?

B : Perfume and a powder tin

A : Why do you need both?

B : I don't know which one to use.
What do you say?

A : Use the perfume, it is mild.

B : You are right. Thanks.

6. Expressing Gratitude

Dialogue 1

A : Thanks for the mosquito net.

B : You are welcome.

A : I don't like to use the mosquito coil or the liquid evaporator.

B : Why not?

A : They may kill the mosquitoes. But they are bad for our lungs.

B : Thanks. You got a point there.

Dialogue 2

A : There is too much powder on your face.

B : Thanks, I shall wipe it off.

A : Use the powder puff.

B : Sorry, I don't have one. I use my towel.

A : You sweat a lot. Use a mild perfume.

B : Thanks for your concern. I shall add it to my shopping list.

A : Don't forget to buy a powder puff.

B : Kind of you.

Dialogues from Book 2

1. Asking about Remembering – A

A: Hai, Arul. Nice to see you after so many years.

B: Hello. I am sorry, I don't remember you.

Dialogue 3

Student : Thanks for selecting me in this college.

Principal : You are welcome.

Student : I should thank my friend who recommended this college.

Principal : Yes, I believe he is a good friend.

Student : I'm grateful to my parents too.

Principal : Of course. You should be.

7. Requesting

Dialogue 1

Student : Please may I come in, sir?

HoD : Yes, come in.

Student: Could you allow me to go to the bank?

HoD : What for?

Student : I would like to open an account.

HoD : Sorry, I can't allow you now. You may go during the break.

Student : Thank you, sir.

Dialogue 2

Student 1 : Hi, Priya, could you pass some rice?

Student 2 : Here it is, Jeeva.

Student 1 : Can I have some curry please?

Student 2 : Sure, here it is.

Student 1 : Very kind of you.

Dialogue 3

Student 1 : Excuse me. Could you give me your pen for a moment, please?

Student 2 : I am sorry. It does not write well.

Student 1 : That's all right. I shall get it from someone else.

Student 2 : Ravi has one with him.

Student 1 : Thank you

A: Arul, have you forgotten me? I am Vellammal.

B: Vellammal, yes, now I remember you. You have changed so much.

A: Of course, Arul, I am married now. You look the same, Arul.

2. Asking about Remembering – B

- A: Do you remember the old comedian ‘Nagesh’?
B: How can one forget such a personality?
A: Yesterday, I watched one of his movies.
B: Which one was it?
A: He acts as a server in a hotel in that movie.
B: How can I forget that movie?
It is ‘Server Sundaram’.
A: Oh it was hilarious.

3. Persuading – A

- Student : Excuse me sir, today we have to have a movie.
Warden : Yes, I remember.
Student : Sir, could we have a Tamil movie today, please?
Warden : No, we shall have an English movie as usual.
Student : Please sir, just this time.
Warden : Oh, come on. Don’t be childish.
Student : Kindly reconsider your decision sir.
Warden : I am sorry, I can’t.

4. Persuading – B

- S1: We, the first year students, want to play a cricket match with you today.
S2: Many of our second year students are not here.
S1: Oh, come on, we shall at least play a friendly match.
S2: Only seven of our friends are in the hostel.
S1: Shall we play with seven players?
S2: No, why don’t we have the match tomorrow?
S1: Sure. We look forward to it.
S2: We too.

5. Dialogues in Hospital - 1

- Nurse: Doctor, the patient in Room no. 12 is calling for you.
Doctor : What’s the problem?
Nurse : He is complaining of chest pain.
Doctor : What did you do?
Nurse : I’ve given him some pain killers.
Doctor : No, you give him an injection. I shall see him after my rounds.
Nurse : Sure, doctor.

6. Dialogues in Hospital - 2

- Patient: Good morning, doctor.
Doctor : Hai, how do you feel now?
Patient: I don’t feel well at all. In fact, the headache has become unbearable. Do you think I should go for a scan?
Doctor : It’s up to you, but my advice would be to consult a specialist first.
Patient: Where shall I go, Chennai or Bengaluru?
Doctor : I’d advise you to go to Chennai.
Patient: Could you suggest the doctor?
Doctor : I’d recommend Dr. Prem Kumar. He is the best in town and my friend too.
Patient : Thank you, doctor.

7. Dialogues in Hospital - 3

- Patient: Sister, I would like to see the doctor.
Nurse : The doctor is in the theatre.
Patient: What? Is the doctor watching a movie?
Nurse : No, no, the doctor is performing a surgery in the operation theatre.
Patient: When can I be discharged? I feel much better.
Nurse : The doctor will decide on it.
Patient: What is my total bill amount?
Nurse : We shall tell you.
Patient: Please don’t shock me with the bill. I may get a heart attack.
Nurse : Don’t worry sir. I shall ask a cardiologist to be near you when the bill is given.

8. Complimenting – (We compliment a person on his/her looks, dress, behaviour...)

- F1: Hi, Raj. That is a nice shirt. Oh, it is a Park Avenue shirt!
F2: That’s right. My uncle bought it in Mumbai.
F1: You look very smart in it.
F2: I too like it very much.
F1: Your uncle has good taste.

9. Congratulating – (We congratulate a person on passing exams, getting a job or promotion, getting married etc., in short when something good happens)

Kumar : Mr. Ramesh, I heard the wonderful news that you have got a baby girl. Congratulations!

Ramesh: Thanks Kumar. Very kind of you.

Kumar : How is the baby? Is she like you or Radha?

Ramesh: The baby is fine but, it's too early to say who she resembles.

Kumar : Do congratulate Radha for me.

Ramesh: Yes, she really deserves it. She went through a lot of pain.

Kumar: No wonder why they say that child birth is like rebirth.

10. Expressing Sympathy - A

Balu: Hai, Ravi. How are you? You look depressed. Is something wrong?

Ravi: Yes, Balu. I am in a mess.

Balu: What happened?

Ravi: I had deposited all my savings in a private bank. Now the company has been liquidated.

Balu: It's terrible. You must be really upset.

Ravi: Yes. All my years of savings are gone.

Balu: I'm sorry. Can I be of some help?

Ravi: Please whisper a prayer for me.

Balu: It's hard earned money. You will certainly get it back.

Ravi: That's consoling. Thank you.

11. Expressing Sympathy – B

Vimal : Hey, you look terrible. What's up?

Mathan : I was in the hospital last night.

Vimal : In the hospital?

Mathan : My little sister met with an accident.

Vimal : Oh, no! I hope it's nothing serious.

Mathan : She was hit by a motor cyclist. Her right hand is fractured.

Vimal : How sad! Is she in the hospital still?

Mathan : No, she is at home, taking rest.

Vimal : You must be terribly upset. I know you love your little sister.

Mathan : You're right. I'm very much down.

12. Dialogues at Work - 1

Arun : Ma, what's my work today?

Mother: You sweep all the rooms.

Arun : What? Sweep? That's a girl's job.

Mother: Why can't boys sweep? What's wrong?

Arun : But, you never send Rani to market.

Mother: So what?

Arun : You always cook. Daddy always works outside. You never exchange.

Mother: You are right. But remember, there are no girl's jobs and boy's jobs.

13. Dialogues during Gardening - 2

Father : Arun, shall we clean the garden today?

Arun : Why dad?

Father : The plants are over grown. Let's trim them.

Arun : Shall we sow some vegetable seeds?

Father : Sure, but first we must prepare the ground.

Arun : How do we do it?

Father : First, we dig the ground, add manure and sow the seeds.

Arun : What about watering and fencing?

Father : Of course, we should do that also.

14. Dialogues while Farming - 3

Son : Daddy, the fields are so green, so beautiful!

Daddy : Of course, the villages are beautiful.

Son : What are the people doing in the fields?

Daddy : They are weeding.

Son : What for?

Daddy : Weeds do not allow the seedlings to grow.

Son : I see!

Daddy : They also compete with the crop in consuming the nutrients from the soil.

Son : The people are dirty.

Daddy : It is true son. Remember if they don't put their feet in the dirt, we cannot put our hands in the food.

Son : Thanks dad, I realise it.

15. Complaining - A

Shanthi :Excuse me, I'm sorry to say that your music is disturbing me all day.

Vijaya :I'm afraid I've a complaint about you too.

Shanthi :Me? Please tell me.

Vijaya : You are fighting with your husband all day long. Do you want me to listen to it all the time?

Shanthi : I'm sorry. He is drunk all day.

Vijaya : Can you do something to stop your husband from cursing all the time?

Shanthi :I shall try.

Vijaya:I shall lower the volume or stop my music if your hubby stops.

16. Complaining – B

A: I'm sorry to bring this up, but I don't know what to do?

B: What's wrong?

A: I'm not quite sure how to put this, but I have to say...

B: Please don't keep me guessing. Just beat it.

A:It's about your son.

B: What is he up to?

A: He is very friendly with my daughter. Our family is not happy about it.

B: I shall advise my son.

A: We spoke to our daughter. She promised not to speak with your son again.

B: I assure you that he will not be a problem for your family.

A: What are you going to do?

B: I shall send him to a college in Trichy.

A:Also don't allow him to take his mobile phone along.

B: You do the same with your daughter.

17. Apologising – A

A: I'm sorry for being late. I got held up in the traffic.

B: That's all right. We understand.

A: I could have informed you. Please accept my sincere apologies for wasting your precious time.

B: Please don't worry. Let's get on with our work.

A: Sorry, it would not happen again.

B: Let us forget it.

A: Thank you.

18. Apologising – B

A: I'm extremely sorry that my dog scared you.

B: Oh! Yes. I was really scared.

A: I wonder how it got out of the gate.

B: I'm sorry, that was entirely my fault.

A: What happened actually?

B:My son had hit the ball into your compound. So, I opened your gate to take the ball.

A: Now I understand. You could have rung the bell at the gate.

B: I'm sorry; I thought that I could take it without disturbing you.

A: Not at all.

B: When I opened the gate, the dog was not there, as I was about to come out, the dog came from nowhere.

A: Thank God that he didn't bite you.

B: He is a good neighbour, I suppose.

19. Apologising – C

Babu : Rita, I'm terribly sorry, I seem to have lost your English book.

Rita:Oh dear!

Babu: I am really sorry. I'm afraid I left it in the bus.

Rita:Next week we have examinations.

Babu: I'll get you a new copy.
Rita: That's very kind of you.
Babu: Please bear with me. Rita!

20. Transportation – 1

Passenger: Excuse me sir, could you tell me the way to the ticket counter?
Co-passenger: Sure. Walk straight and turn left at the clock tower.
Pass: Very kind of you sir. May I know where the platforms are?
Co: Where do you go?
Pass: I go to Bangaluru.
Co: Then, you need to go to platform 2.
Pass: Where is it?
Co: Near the ticket counter, there is a bridge. You get on the bridge, you will see platform 2.
Pass: Do you know when 'Brindavan Express' leaves?
Co: It's at 07:40 hrs.
Pass: Thanks for your time and information.
Co: I am glad to be of some help.

21. Transportation – 2

Conductor: Ticket please.
Passenger: Give me a ticket to Tanjore.
Conductor: Here it is.
Passenger: How much is the fare?
Conductor: It is Rs.25.
Passenger: How long is the journey?
Conductor: Normally it takes about an hour.
Passenger: Could you stop at the Govt. hospital?
Conductor: Sure. I will.
Passenger: Very kind of you.

22. Professions – A

Hair dresser: Come in, sir.
Customer: Well, I need to cut my hair.
Hair dresser: Sure. Do you need short haircut or medium or just trimming?
Customer: Just trimming is enough.
Hairdresser: Shall I trim your beard too?
Customer: Yes, of course. How much do you charge for the haircut?

Hair dresser: Sir, it is Rs.50 for haircut and Rs.20 for trimming the beard.
Customer: Then haircut is enough for me.
Hair dresser: Sir, you just pay me Rs.10 for trimming the beard.
Customer: No, thanks. Haircut would do.

23. Professions – B

Student 1: I want to be a driver.
Student 2: Why so?
Student 1: I want to see new places.
Student 2: Being a driver is dangerous.
Student 1: That's what my father too says.
Student 2: Why don't you become a sales representative?
You can travel a lot.
Student 1: That sounds good.
Student 2: If you get into some multinational companies, you could travel to many countries too.
Student 1: I am really excited.
Student 2: If you become a pilot, you can fly to many countries.
Student 1: Thanks for your valuable suggestions.

24. Making Suggestions – A

A: May I suggest that we go for a movie tomorrow?*B: What's special tomorrow?
A: Rajini's new movie is being released tomorrow.
B: How can you get the tickets?
A: Why don't we approach our Manager? He is a close friend of Rajini.*
B: Let's go as a group.*
A: Shall we meet him during the lunch break? He is busy with a client now.*
B: We could buy him a packet of Briyani.*
A: Hope Briyani would do the trick.

25. Making Suggestions – B

A: Why not we go to Bengaluru for our Industrial visit? *
B: What's so special about Bengaluru?
A: There are many companies in and around Bengaluru.
B: How about Chennai? *
A: I tell you what, we can reach Bengaluru in 2 hours. *

B: We can reach Chennai in 3 hours.
A: OK. Do you have someone in Chennai who can arrange for our Industrial visit?
B: Of course, my elder brother works in TCS.
A: Let's us go to Chennai, then.

26. Making suggestions – C

Divya : Ma, I feel very cold here.
Mother: Cover yourself with a blanket.
Divya : Even then I am freezing.
Mother: Why can't you draw the curtains down?
Divya : OK ma, could you plug in the mosquito repellent?
Mother: Oh sure! Good night.
Divya : Good night, ma.

27. Warning Someone – A

A: Be careful! The river is deep.*
B: I know to swim very well.
A: Watch out. There are crocodiles in there.*
B: Are you serious?
A: I read somewhere.
B: You must be crazy.*
A: Look out.
 There is one coming towards you.*
B: Oh my God!
A: You better get out quick.*
B: You saved my life. Thanks a million.

28. Warning Someone – B

A: Mind your purse.
 There are many pickpockets in the town.*
B: I know the town very well. Come on.
A: I should be careful, if I were you.*
B: Have you ever heard of anyone losing the money recently?*
A: Yes, just yesterday, that's why I warn you.*
B: You better watch out.
 Your purse is jutting out of your pocket.
A: Thank you.

29. Warning someone – C

Keerthi : Why can't we leave home earlier?
 It may rain today.
Prema : But I have works to complete still.
 You may leave.

Keerthi : OK, be careful, you are the only one working in this huge office.
Prema : No problem. I'm not a kid.
 Besides, the security is at the door.
Keerthi : If you are very late, take a bus home.
 Don't take your bike. Be careful.
Prema : Thanks for your concern.

30. Dialogues related to weather, season, natural calamities – A

Hari : It is so hot in Vellore. I want to escape from here for a few days.
Riya : Then, go to Ooty.
Hari : Oh! It's far away.
Riya : Then go to Yellagiri Hills.
 It's called 'the poor man's Ooty'.
Hari : Have you been there?
Riya : Yes, it is not as cool as Ooty but, very pleasant. Any day it is far better than Vellore.
Hari : Is it foggy in the mornings?
Riya : Not during summer but, it is frequently foggy in winter.
Hari : That's perfect. I go to Yellagiri Hills.

31. Dialogues related to weather, season, and natural calamities – B

Student 1 : There is a prayer meeting this morning.
Student 2 : What for?
Student 1 : Our classmate Sumi lost her father, in the recent Tsunami.
Student 2 : What is a Tsunami?
Student 1 : It is a Japanese word, meaning tidal waves caused by an underground earthquake.
Student 2 : Then?
Student 1 : Huge waves of 10 to 15 metres height reach the shore.
Student 2 : My Lord! They could cause colossal damage to both life and property.
Student 1 : In the recent Tsunami, more than two hundred thousand people died.
Student 2 : Nature is awesome. Thanks for the information.

32. Dialogues related to weather, season, and natural calamities – C

Student 1 : This winter is rather cold.

Student 2 : That's true.

Student 1 : There was a report about it in the paper, yesterday.

Student 2 : What does it say?

Student 1 : It says that it is a sign of changing weather pattern.

Student 2 : What do you mean by changing weather pattern?

Student 1 : Summer is too hot and winter is too cold; moreover, the season is prolonged.

Student 2 : No wonder why our last summer was so hot and so long.

Student 1 : They are predicting drought this year.

Student 2 : Oh my God!

Student 1 : Yes, only God can save us.

33. Asking about possibility - A

Nikita : Did you read about the killing of 40 Indian soldiers by Pakistan terrorists?

Nithila : Yes, it was terrible.

Nikita : Do you think India will take any action against Pakistan?

Nithila : Retaliation for retaliation sake, kills innocent people.

Nikita : Then, what is the solution?

Nithila : Strengthen our intelligence network and prevent such killings.

Nikita : Will it be effective?

Nithila : It may not stop completely; it could prevent many of them.

Nikita : Let's pray it stops.

34. Asking about possibility – B

Student 1: Do you think India will win the World Cup this year?

Student 2: Of course, what's the doubt?

Student 1: With all these match-fixing and spot-fixing scandals?

Student 2: Look at the latest matches; we have been doing well.

Student 1: I bet India will lose against New Zealand.

Student 2: It is unlikely to happen that way.

New Zealand does not have good bowlers.

Student 1: In all likelihood, Pakistan will win the Cup.

Student 2: In my calculation, India has a good chance more than any other country.

Student 1: What is the bet?

Student 2: OK, it is Rs.1000. It is more than likely that I win the bet.

Student 1: Let's see.

35. Asking if someone is sure – A

Jaya : You've dropped something.

Chintu : Are you sure?

Jaya : Certainly. I saw it.

Chintu : What was it that I dropped?

Jaya : Your handkerchief?

Chintu : Are you certain about it?

Jaya : Absolutely.

Chintu : Yes. You are right.

It is not in my pocket.

Jaya : Just walk back, you will find it.

Chintu : Yes, I found it. Thanks.

36. Asking if someone is sure – B

Vani: Are you sure that we have a holiday today?

Kala: Certainly, I heard it on the radio.

Vani: But, it stopped raining yesterday. Why should we have a holiday today?

Kala: It seems that many parts of the city are still under water.

Vani: Hope you are not taking me for a ride!

Kala: I am hundred per cent certain.

Vani: I shall ring up to our school and find out. There is still an element of doubt.

Kala: Don't you believe me?

Vani: I believe you but, I want to be certain.

Kala: You better go to the school and see for yourself!

37. Universe, roads and traffic signals – A

Roshan: Sir, you are not supposed to park your car here.

Baskar : Why not?

Roshan: Look at the sign board. It is strictly prohibited.

Baskar : Then, where shall I park?

Roshan: Go straight and turn right, it is at the end of the street.

Baskar : Thanks for your help.

Roshan: When you are turning right, watch out, there is no traffic signal there.

Baskar : Thank you.

38. Universe, roads and traffic signals – B

Pranesh: Viki, why did our teacher say that refrigerators are not eco-friendly?

Viki : They affect the ozone layer.

Pranesh: I do not understand the link between refrigerator and ozone.

Viki : The gases emitted by the refrigerator and smoke from the vehicles, puncture the ozone layer.

Pranesh: So what?

Viki : Through the holes in the ozone, ultra violet rays from the sun are reaching the earth.

Pranesh: Is it not good for the earth?

Viki : Not at all. It can cause skin cancer and global warming.

Pranesh: How could we protect the ozone layer?

Viki : Emissions from cars, trains, planes, etc., are harmful. We can avoid using petrol, diesel and all kinds of sprays.

Pranesh: Come, let's walk back home.

39. Universe, roads and traffic signals – C

Teacher : Students, we shall visit Rocket Launching facility at Sriharikota.

Students : When do we go?

Teacher : On the 15th of this month.

Students : Why 15th?

Teacher : There is a rocket being launched with three satellites.

Students: Three satellites?

Teacher: Yes, one is for weather forecasting, the second is for telecommunication and the third will orbit around the Moon.

The Stonecutter

Kallu was a poor stonecutter. One day, it was hot, and Kallu did not feel like working. He put his pick axe down and said, “I want to be rich.”

Suddenly, an angel came down from heaven and said, “You shall be rich.” And so, Kallu became rich. He ate and drank all day.

One day he saw a king. Everybody bowed to him. Kallu said, “Money isn’t enough. I want to be a king.”

The angel came again, and made him a king. Now everybody bowed to him. Kallu was happy. One day, he was going around his country. The hot sun burnt him. Suddenly Kallu shouted, "I want to be the sun."

The angel came again and turned Kallu into the sun. Kallu burnt everything. He burnt the faces of the kings. He burnt the faces of the rich and of the stonecutters who were cutting stones. He was happy. But after a couple of days, he saw a cloud not reach the earth any more. The cloud was stronger! And of course, the man wanted to be a cloud.

The angel came again and turned Kallu into a cloud. The cloud rained every day. People stopped coming out of their houses. The sun did not shine on the earth any more. The man was overjoyed. He was stronger than the sun! The people, the grass, the trees, everything was washed away by the rain.

But then the water fell on a rock. The rock did not move! Kallu saw this. He shouted, "I want to be a rock!"

And the angel came down and turned Kallu into a rock. The rock did not move when it rained. But suddenly a man with a pick-axe came and began to cut stones from the rock! Kallu did not want to be a rock any more.

The angel came down for the last time and said, "You shall be a stonecutter." So Kallu was a stonecutter again. He was poor, but he was happy.

A Great Principal

Dr. A. J. Boyd, one time Principal of Madras Christian College (1938-1957), had a very strict rule – no one should walk across the college lawns or climb over the hedges. The punishment for climbing over a hedge was a fine of five rupees. If a student was caught doing this, Dr. Boyd would feel the student's pocket and collect the fine on the spot.

One day, a student saw Dr. Boyd coming towards him. Wanting to do something funny he jumped over the hedge, held up a ten rupee note and asked for change. Dr. Boyd pocketed the note and walked off, saying cheerily, "Jump back across the hedge, my boy!"

The fine for not bringing the English textbook to the class was 12 paise. He collected these fines, too, on the spot. He kept the money he collected as fines in the right pocket of his jacket. Now one day, the Principal was very busy. After he had rushed into the classroom to teach, he found that he himself had forgotten to bring the textbook. He calmly took out 12 paise from his left pocket and put it into his right pocket! You see, he was as strict with himself as he was with others!

Dr. Boyd had remarkable memory. Many years after he left the college, he met about sixty of his old students in London. They had grown up and changed much. But he greeted everyone by name and remembered their years of study at the college. But he could not remember one name immediately. He was very unhappy about this and said, "That means I am growing old." he was: he did not live many years after that.

A Fire

It was 8.30 on a Monday morning. In a building with twenty-four floors, in a big town, hundreds of people were going to start work. On the eighteenth floor, twenty-three year-old Jenny was making tea for her boss. Suddenly she smelt something burning.

Mr. Silva, "she called out to her boss. "Are you getting the smell of smoke?"

"Yes." replied Mr. Silva. "Do you know where it's coming from?"

"I think it's from that wall." said Jenny.

"Don't be afraid, I can put it out." said Mr. Silva.

He tried to put out the fire. However, he did not quite know what to do. Suddenly, the wall burst like a bomb with a loud sound and everything started to burn. From the wall the fire spread to all the things in the room. The whole building was soon filled with smoke. Nobody seemed to know what to do and everyone rushed for the staircase.

Now the stairs were full of people, shouting and pushing. They were getting in each other's way. Jenny and Mr. Silva could not go down. So they went up to the roof. Soon, they were joined there by many people. They stood helpless on the roof, smoke fire all around them.

"Don't the firemen know where we are?" should one man.

"They have no ladders tall enough to reach the twenty fourth floor." answered a woman. "We can only hope and pray to God to save us."

Slowly, the heat began to burn their feet and their hair began to smoke. All of them took off their rings and watches and threw them away, for they were too hot to wear. They could even see their skin turning black with the heat. Many people began to faint, because of the smoke.

"I don't want to die!" cried a woman. She jumped down from the roof and fell to the street twenty-four floors below.

"Don't be afraid, all of you," shouted a young man. "Don't jump! Help is on its way!"

He showed the other people how to breathe slowly in the some. Jenny wondered whether it was better to die quickly by jumping, or wait for a slow death by fire.

After some hours, at 11.30 a.m., a helicopter landed on the roof with a lot of difficulty. It first carried off all those who were hurt, then the women, and last of all, the men. Altogether, eighty-one people were saved. However, many others were not so lucky. When the fire was at last put out, firemen found sixty burnt bodies on the roof.

Drona's Test

Drona was an extremely good teacher. It is said that one day he called his pupils to him to test their powers of concentration. He gathered them around him and pointed at a target. It was a bird on the branch of a tree. "Bring down the head of the bird for me." Ordered Drona. He told Yudhisthira to come forward alone because he was eldest. Yudhisthira drew his bow. But at the moment Drona helped up his hand. "Wait!" he said. "Tell me first, what do you see?"

"I see the bird," answered Yudhisthira. "And the branch on which it sits and the leaves of the tree."

"Go on," Drona ordered. "Is there anything else? Tell me" Yudhisthira answered, "I see the tree and the sky and you, my teacher, and I see my brothers"

Then Drona said to him, "Stand aside. You have still much to learn."

After Yudhisthira, came Duryodhana. He answered Drona's question just as Yudhisthira had done, saying that he saw the bird and the branch, the leaves and the tree, and the sky, and before him, his teacher, and beyond, his brothers.

Then Drona asked him also to stand aside, and asked for Bhima. Bhima did no better. Now Drona was full of sadness that his pupils had failed the test, and not done as well as he wished. At last he called Arjuna to him, and repeated his questions.

"Do you see the bird?"

"I do," Arjuna answered.

"And what else besides?"

"I see only the bird," Arjuna answered. "Nothing else."

"Do you not see the tree and the sky and the earth, myself your teacher and beyond. Do you no see your brothers?"

"I see only the bird." Arjuna repeated.

Arjuna answered, "Only the eye." Drona walked up to Arjuna and patted him on his back, "Lower your bow, O Arjuna!" he said. "You have shown yourself the true archer. For above everything else an archer must not allow his attention to wander. When the true archer concentrates, his eyes see nothing but his target, and his arrow makes no mistake in reaching it.

Across the Atlantic

1. The Atlantic is a huge ocean. It is about 5,000 kilometres wide, between New York, in the United States of America, and England. Only big ships can cross the ocean safely. But two young men crossed it in a small boat.
2. The men were George Harbo and Frank Samuelson. They built a boat about five metres long and one-and-a-half metres wide. At each end of the boat there was tank for fresh water. A man named Fox gave them a lot of money for building the boat. So they named the boat 'Fox', after him.
3. They stored enough food, water and oil in the boat. They fixed a small oil-stove at one end of the boat.
4. On 6 June, 1986, a large number of people gathered at the New York harbor. They looked at the great ocean and the small boat. "When will you reach England?" asked one of them.
5. "In about two months." said Harbo.
6. "Where will you go from there?" asked another man.
7. "To France," said Samuelson.
8. "How much water is there in the tanks?"
9. "About 250 litres"
10. "How will you cook your food?"
11. "On that small oil-stove."
12. "Well, good luck to you!"
13. At 5.00 p.m. the 'Fox' left the harbor. The people cheered.
14. Harbo and Samuelson rowed the boat from eight in the morning till noon every day. Then they ate their lunch and rested for an hour. They rowed again until supper. At night, one of them rowed and the other slept.
15. The sea was calm for the first few days. The boat covered about 80 kilometres a day. The two men were happy.
16. On 14 June there was a strong wind. It pushed the boat about 32 kilometres backwards! By the first week of July, the wind had become very strong. Water got into the boat. One of them tried to empty the water out of the boat while the other rowed.
17. Suddenly a huge wave hit the boat. It turned the little boat over. The men fell into the water. With great difficulty, they set the boat right and climbed into it. They were tired and wet.
18. "I want to sleep," said Samuelson. "So do I," said Harbo
19. They slept for a long time. When they woke up, they were hungry and thirsty. There were only a few biscuits left in a tin, and very little water in the tank.
20. "What shall we do?" asked Harbo.
"When will we meet a ship?" asked Samuelson.
"What will happen to us?" they wondered.
21. On 15 July, they finally saw a ship. The captain of the ship took them aboard. He gave them a good meal. He also gave them fresh water and a lot of food to continue on their journey.
22. The 'Fox' was again on its way. The men were strong and cheerful once more.
23. On 1 August, they saw land. After 55 days on the sea, they were on land again! They were in England. They had crossed the great Atlantic in a small boat!

Childhood

Being an only child, I liked playing by myself; but I liked to have my mother always near me so that I could see her. One evening she had a visitor, an aunt returning from Paris who had brought a beautifully embroidered dress for me. Mother returned it with a smile, saying that we now wore only khadi, i.e. handspun and hand woven material. The visitor could not understand this; looking at my mother's clothes-the only khadi you could get then was very thick and rough – she could see that wherever her skin had rubbed against the sari it had become sore and red. She cried out, “I think you have all gone mad! You are of course a grown-up, and if you want to be ill, I suppose that is your business. But you should not make the child suffer and it is for her that I have brought this gift.”

“Come here, Indu,” called my mother. “Aunty has brought you a foreign frock. It is very pretty and you can wear it if you like, but first think of the big fire where we burnt our foreign things. Would you like to wear this pretty thing when the rest of us are wearing khadi?” My eyes shone when I looked at the dress; I wanted it very much. I held out a small hand to touch the dress, but even before my hand reached it I found myself saying. “Take it away – I shan't ever wear it.”

“But why not, don't you like nice things?” the visitor said. “I do... but...” and I repeated all that I had heard the elder say. Then she said, “All right, Miss Saint, how is it that you have a foreign doll?” It was said almost like a joke; she did not mean to be unkind. Grown-ups so often look upon children as playthings – they do not understand the feelings of children. I was fond of the doll, I could not think of it, or indeed of anything, as lifeless. The doll was my friend, my child.

For days on end – or was it weeks? - I kept thinking over what my aunt had said. And I was troubled. I loved the doll very dearly and was also very proud to have such a lovely thing. But then there was, as I thought, my duty towards my country. I found it difficult to eat my food and slept only because I was tired. My mother thought I was falling ill, and so I was. At last the decision was made. With shaking hands, I took the doll up on the roof-terrace and set fire to her. Then the tears came as if they could never stop and for some days I was ill with a temperature. To this day I hate striking and match!

Glossary

A Face in the Dark

1. Major Sangster (retired), a teacher at an Anglo-Indian public school of Simla, was returning the school late one evening after a game of billiards at the Simla Club. The bazaar with its cinemas and restaurants was about two miles from the school. Major Sangster a bachelor had been teaching for many years, and he usually walked into the town in the evenings returning to the school after dark, when he would take a short cut through a pine forest.
Twenty years of living in a boarding school and coming in contact, without really ever getting to know, thousands of polite but distant Indian school boys had made Major Sangster rather lonely and unhappy.
2. When there was a strong wind, the pine trees made sad, eerie noises that made most people keep to the main road. The hill people believe that each tree has its own spirit, only waiting to take possession of a careless passer-by. But Major Sangster was not a nervous or superstitious man, he believed in science and not in science fiction.
3. On this particular night he was carrying a torch. Its pale light (the batteries were weak) moved faithfully along the narrow forest path when its flickering light fell on the figure of a boy who was sitting by himself on the rock, Major Sangster stopped in surprise. Boys were not supposed to be out of school after 6:00pm and it was almost nine.
4. "What are you doing out there?" asked the Major angrily, coming nearer in order to try and recognize the boy.
5. But even as he approached the boy, the Major could tell that something was wrong. The boy appeared to be crying. He held his head in his hands, and his body kept shaking. But it was a strange, soundless crying, which made Major Sangster feel very uneasy. It seemed as though it were being taken up by the wind, to mix with the sad sounds of the pine trees.
6. "Well, what's wrong?" asked the Major, his anger giving way to worry. "What are you crying for?" The boy would not answer or look up. His body was still shaking with silent sobbing.
7. "Come, tell me the trouble, Look up". The boy look up, He took his hands away from his face and looked up at his teacher. The light from the Major's torch fell full on the boy's face. He had no eyes, ears, nose or mouth. His face- if you could call it that- was a round smooth head, covered by a school cap.
8. The torch fell from Major Sangster's hand. He turned and ran down the path, running blindly towards the school gate. He was still running when he saw a lantern moving in the middle of the path.
9. The Major had never before been so pleased to see the night watchman. He almost fell as he ran to the man, breathing loudly. He was saying something, which the watchman could not understand.
10. "What is it, Sahib?" asked the watchman. "Has there been an accident? Why are you running?" "I saw something- something terrible- a boy crying in the forest, and when he looked up at me, he had no face".
11. "No face, Sahib?" the watchman asked
"I mean, no eyes, no mouth-nothing," said Major Sangster.
"It is nothing to worry about, Sahib," said the watchman pleasantly, and he raised the lamp to his own face.
12. The watchman had no eyes, no mouth, no features at all- no, not even an eyebrow. Major Sangster stood very frightened. And the wind blew the lamp out.

Charles Darwin

1. The idea of evolution is an old one. But it was Charles Darwin who first showed beyond doubt that evolution was the way in which living things change over hundreds and thousands of years. He taught that as the centuries go by, species of animals and plants change very slowly. During thousands of years the horse has evolved from a small and hairy animal to the splendid animal that we know.
2. Every species of living creature has changed and is changing. Some animals, such as the prehistoric saber-toothed tiger, have died out, some are slowly dying out, and sometime new species appear. The dog is a species which man has caused to evolve the wolf.

3. How do some species survive (continue to live) and how do other become extinct? How have species changes? These were the other questions that Darwin had set himself to answer. The answer he gave us was that in the world of nature there is never-ending struggle for life. Wild animal kill each other for food and all living things compete for food, water and living space. It is the strongest, fastest and hardiest creature or plant that lives. The weak die out.
  4. Species which are able to win against their enemies and adapt themselves to suit the conditions in which they live, outlive those which are weaker and less adaptable. For example the giraffe the longest neck could get more food than the shorter-necked ones, and so the shorter-necked ones disappeared from the earth.
  5. Darwin wrote a book about his discoveries. It was called The Origin of Species, and it was published in 1859.
- Never has a scientist, with one book, caused such a stir in the world as Darwin did with The Origin of Species. His ideas, the result of many years of patient thought and study, were attacked by the learned and the ignorant alike. He was called a madman.
6. Long and bitter quarrels arose, and most religious people of that time attacked him. According to Darwin, human beings 'evolved' from the apes. But the Christians believe that God 'created' man. They said that he was trying to destroy religion completely. Darwin, of course, had no such plan. His book talked in a scientific way about a problem of science, and the only people he answered were those who attacked him for reasons of science.
  7. His refusal to answer the others did not stop his enemies, however. The newspapers were filled with letters and articles attacking the very idea of evolution: and the less the writers knew about the subject, the more forceful was their attack.
  8. Darwin, however, was helped by a few able scientists, who untiringly spread what he taught. He had gathered so many facts, and built so surely on these unanswerable facts, that his ideas carried great weight once they were understood. After the first storm had died away, men began to see things in Darwin's way. Slowly and quietly, Darwin's teaching came to be accepted by more and more people.

A Mother's Punishment: A Story from Sarawak

1. Kenyah people believe that it is wrong to make fun of animals: if you do, you'll be punished terribly. This story tells of such a punishment.
2. Long ago there was a large longhouse on the banks of the Baram River. The chief of this house was a bad man, but he had an only son whom he loved very much. In the last room of the longhouse there lived a poor woman who also had an only son whom she loved very much. All day from early morning until late evening she worked hard growing rice and vegetables on her small piece of land to keep herself and her son alive.
3. One day, the chief's son fell ill. His father was very worried and sent messages to all the nearby longhouses asking their doctors to come and help his son. Many of them came and tried their best to cure him, but the boy got more and more ill. After six days of illness, the boy died. His father was very sad. The boy was placed in a coffin which was kept in front of the longhouse. Then the men went to a place about two miles from the longhouse. They dug a large hole in the ground. Later the coffin was to be out in it, with a tall wooden post to hold it in place. In those days when a chief's son died another boy had to be killed and his body put under the post of the coffin.
4. On the third day after this, the poor woman went to work in the fields as usual. She left her son alone at the longhouse. But he went with the other people to see where the coffin was to be put. As soon as the chief saw him, he told his men to kill the poor boy. So the boy was killed and his body was put under the post. After that, the coffin was placed on top and everybody went sadly back to the longhouse.
5. In the evening when the women returned to the longhouse she called out to her son. But nobody answered her. Then she was told what had happened during that day. The woman cries her heart out; she was also furious with the chief for killing her son. Then she thought of a plan to make the chief for what he had done.
6. That evening the chief called a meeting to talk the death of his son. While this was happening the women went to the riverside and caught a big frog. When she brought it back to the longhouse she dressed it up to look like the chief and put it in a small tobacco boxes so that they could smoke during the meeting.
7. While they were talking the box containing the frog was placed in front of the chief. The chief opened it, and out jumped the frog, dressed up like himself. Everyone laughed and laughed when they saw it. Even the chief laughed in spite of his sadness. Then the frog jumped down from the house and escaped into the river.
8. Suddenly dark clouds came across the sky and the wind started to blow. The rain came pouring down. It was the worst storm they have ever seen. The whole longhouse was shaken by wind and everybody was frightened. The storm lasted for two hours and soon the river was flooded. The water rose inch it covered the ground under the house; then it started to rise towards the floor.

9. While the thunder roared the water rose higher and higher; soon it came into the longhouse and with it came hundreds of frogs. Then suddenly, as if by magic, a strong gust of wind blew the whole longhouse across the river. As soon as it touched the other bank it turned into a huge rock and the chief and all the people were caught inside and turned to stone. Only the poor woman managed to escape and she found a boat and reached another village far away.

4. But quite by mistake, he was sent to Worker' Paradise.
5. In this Paradise everyone worked all the time.
6. This newcomer, who had passed all his life on earth without doing any useful work, did not fit in at all in Workers' Paradise. He walked around the streets lazily or lay down in the fields close to fast-flowing stream, and was scolded by busy farmers. He was always in the way of others.
7. A hardworking girl went every day to the stream to fill her pit. The girl was always in a hurry. She had no time even to comb her beautiful hair. One day she saw the idler standing by the stream, and was filled with pity. "A-ha!" she cried. "You have no work in hand, have you?"
The man said, "work! I have not a moment left for work."
The girl did not understand his words, and said, I can give you some work if you like
The man replied, "Girl of the stream, all this time I have been waiting to take some work form your hands. "
8. What kind of work would you like? " she enquired
"Will you give me one of your pots?" he asked.
She said, A pot? You want to draw water from the stream?"
"No, I shall draw pictures on your pot," he answered.
9. The girl was angry, "Pictures, indeed! I have no time to waste on such as you. I am going, "And she walked away.
But every day they met, and every day he said to her, "Girl of the stream, give me one of your clay pots, I shall draw pictures on it.
10. Then at last, one day, she gave him one of her pots. The man started painting. He drew line after line, he put color after color. When he had completed his work, the girl held up the pots and stared at its sides, her eyes puzzled. She asked. "What do they mean, all those lines and colours? What is their purpose?"
11. The man laughed, "Nothing, A picture may have no meaning and may serve no purpose. "The girl went away with her picture. At home away from curios eyes, she held it in the light, turned it round and round and looked at the painting from all angles. At night she move out of bed, lighted a lamp and looked again in silence. For the first time in her life she seem something that had no meaning and purpose at all.
12. When she set out for the stream the next day, her hurrying feet were a little less hurried than before. For a new sense seemed to have weakened in her, a sense that seemed to have no meaning and no purpose at all.
13. She saw the painter standing by the stream and asked, "What do you want now?"
Let me make a coloured ribbon for your hair, he answered.
And what for?"
"Nothing"
14. Ribbon were made, bright with colour. The busy girl of Workers' Paradise had now to spend a lot of time every day dying the coloured ribbon around her hair. The minutes slipped by, unused. Much work was left unfinished.
15. In Workers' Paradise, work was not getting done. Many persons who had been active before now wasted their time on useless things such as painting and sculpture. The elder became anxious. A meeting was called, all agreed that there was something wring in Workers' Paradise.

A Medical Student with a Difference

1. On a damp foggy day near the end of the October, the young medical students in the anatomy class saw a man of thirty come into the room and take his place as a freshman among them. He was tall and strongly built, with dark, unruly hair and the kind of heavy, bristling moustache popular with the men of the time. His hazel-brown eyes had a way of twinkling with ready laughter and friendship, yet there was something also in their expression which made him different from the others in the room.

2. Some of the students might have recognized him as the professor who taught philosophy at the University. Others may have heard him speak at the Church of St. Nicholas beside the River III, or they might have known him as the Principal of the Theological College. And those who liked music had heard him play the organ at St. William's Church nearby.
3. But what he was doing here, they wondered, why would he be starting as a freshman in the class on anatomy? They saw him again in the other classes, in physiology, chemistry, physics, zoology and botany, listening to the lectures and taking notes as they were doing. But why?
4. The students were not the only ones who asked the question. The teachers in the medical school, the professors in the philosophy departments and all Albert Schweitzer's other friends were asking the same question. Why should a man who already had a doctor's degree in theology and another in philosophy, be coming here now as a freshman to begin the long, hard course in medicine?
5. It had not been an easy decision for Albert Schweitzer to make. He knew it would take him a number of years to prepare for the work he had undertaken. But he had thought his reasons for it would be understood. From Paris, where he had gone that summer, he had written to relatives and a few close friends, telling of his plan to begin the study of medicine so that he could give the help most needed to the people of Africa.
6. "But why should a man of your ability, and with a future of such promise, throw it all away to go off to the jungles of Africa?" they exclaimed.
 "Oh yes," they said, "we do understand that people there are suffering from famine and disease and pain. And that help is needed more there, perhaps than in any other, place in the world. But why should you be the one to go? Why not leave such work to others who don't have so much to sacrifice?"
 "Couldn't you do much more by staying here and giving lectures to raise money for them?"
7. Even the musician Widor, who loved Schweitzer as if he had been his own son, compared him to a General wanting to go into the firing line himself. And he begged Schweitzer to think it over carefully before coming to such a decision. Others not so kind, began to hint at some secret reason. They said that he was disappointed because he had not become famous as quickly as he might have wanted, though they must have realized this could not be true. He had already made a name for himself with his concerts and lectures and with his writings. How strange it was, Schweitzer thought, that they could guess at every reason but the right ones!
8. To him, it was nothing out of the ordinary that he had chosen to do. He hadn't thought of sacrifice or heroism. He simply recognized it as a duty which, he told himself, should be done with quite enthusiasm.
9. Far from looking upon this as a sacrifice, Schweitzer felt he was usually fortunate. He had health, energy, practical common sense, thoughtfulness, prudence- just everything needed for the work he had chosen. And he was free to go where he was needed. He thought of the many others who must have had this same desire to follow the kind of the life he had chosen, but who had to give it up because of ill health, or because they had a family to look after.
10. There was no use showing anger at the people who questioning him. He reasoned, why should anyone who sets out to do a worthwhile job expect others to roll stones out of the way for him. Even if a few more stones were rolled in the way, it was best to accept them calmly. These very obstacles could give him the strength needed to conquer.
11. Stubbornly, he went on, for he knew the way he was going and nothing could turn him aside.
12. Albert Schweitzer took his medical degree in 1912. With his wife Helen, he went to Lambarene in Gabon in Central Africa in 1913, where he set up a hospital, taking modern medicine to people who had never seen a doctor until then. In 1952, Schweitzer was awarded the Nobel Peace Prize.

An Onion for Good Health

- 1) Many years ago, Russian architect decided to crown a white cathedral with a glided onion-shaped roof. He may simply have liked the shape, or maybe there is another explanation. The point is that for over two thousand years, various people have believed that onion could do many wonderful things.

- 2) The Egyptian considered it a holy plant: they took oaths on it and offered it to the gods and the dead. That was why bunches of onion tops were placed in the sarcophagi of Egyptian Pharaohs.
- 3) The Greeks and Romans believed that the juice of the plant soldiers stronger and braver. Unfortunately, the ancients didn't know that the onion, though full of good qualities, could affect the heart and the liver if too much of it was eaten
- 4) By the twelfth century the onion was growing I just about every country of Europe, and today it is grown all over the world. Some people ever used onion bulbs in their marriage ceremonies. For instance, a Thracian, among other gifts, received a barrelful of onion bulbs on his wedding day. This, it was believed, would give him good health and strength for many long years to come. Centuries were to pass before man stopped believing in the magical powers of the onion. Perhaps King Richard the Lion-Hearted of England wore an onion amulet round his neck because he thought it would protect him from death.
- 5) In the past, when sickness was common, people hung bunches of onion bulbs in their homes. Of course, this did not save them from cholera, for instance, but it has long been noticed that some illnesses are, as it were, frightened away by the onion. In Russia, for instance, a thin onion soup was used in healing wounds, ulcers, and fresh burns and in removing warts and old corns. The medicine, which could be got easily and was able to cure many diseases, was used above all in the countryside, when homemade medicines were used to treat the common cold and more serious illnesses. Fresh onion juice was drunk (one teaspoonful three or four times a day before meal) in the case of diseases of the stomach. Vapour of grated onion was inhaled for ten to fifteen minutes to fight disease of the lungs.
- 6) Women rubbed their face with onion juice to get rid of brown on the skin. They also rubbed it into the skin of their heads in the belief this would make their hair grow thicker and faster.
- 7) And farmer noticed that wheat and rye were not spoilt in their barns if onion were buried in the grain.
- 8) These age-old observations received a scientific explanation in the 1930s, when scientists discovered that onions contain phytochemicals-substances which kill fungi and microbes which cause diseases like tuberculosis and diphtheria. There is another secret of this plant's medicinal powers. Nature has generously given it valuable components- Vitamin C, the salts of calcium and phosphorous, and nitrogen compounds. And this is not all. Onion extract was found to contain another valuable substance prostaglandin A, which regulates the blood pressure and prevents some illnesses of the heart and blood.
- 9) It has been proven in experiments that onion juice clears cholesterol from the blood. Baked onion is said to be good for people with diabetes.
- 10) From this plant, which has so many good qualities, Soviet pharmacologists have got an alcohol extract called allylchep a medicine found to help intestinal functioning and improve the general physical state.
- 11) But then, in its natural form, the onion is very useful for healthy people too, as it helps to keep off illness caused by lack of vitamins. Food seasoned with it is easy to digest and the flavor improves the appetite. Many people add this vegetable to their national dishes. In some case it is use to add taste, in other it is the main vegetable: as, for instance, in France onion soup or in Oriental dolma (stuffed onion). Depending on the products with which onion is combined, it is first fried in butter. Baked, stewed, or boiled. But more often than not, it is used row to make various salads.
- 12) Incidentally, for a long time, it was not understood why people 'cry' when they peel and slice onions. Then biochemists discovered in onion juice a particular aldehyde which contained sulphur. It is now known that when this gets on the wet surface of the eye it changes into caustic sulphurous acid. It is which causes tears.
